WHAT WE'RE DRINKING

Since medieval times, Gameez [Gamay] had an uneasy relationship with its parent grape, Pinot Noir - described in the late 14th century as a "disloyal variety" and "very harmful to human beings" by the Pinot Noir-loving nobility! Thankfully, despite many anti-Gamay decrees made by the nobility of the Côte-d'Or over the centuries, the vine persisted and now has its own home further south in Beaujolais. A small but diverse region ensures there is a plethora of styles to love and at Marion, love it we do! Some are deliciously light-bodied and brimming with red fruits, whilst others still [especially from Chénas, Moulin-à-Vent and Morgon] are structured, brooding and bold.

- Carlin
