

We know some of you will have an idea, or more, about what natural wine is, though we thought it best to start out with everyone on the same page. You no doubt will have heard terms like, unfiltered, cloudy or even funky thrown about to describe natural wines, but this really doesn't do the incredible amount of hard work and skill justice.

To us, natural wine is a kaleidoscope of tastes and sensations in a bottle. Sometimes transportative, sometimes contemplative and others carefree, salubrious and life affirming. They're wines that aren't up for being judged, ranked and scored. And while there are often "insta-famous" or "unicorn" wines of very limited availability, we're interested in everything from the egalitarian bottles that simply put a smile on your face, to the expertly grown and crafted wines that shine as excellent examples of a given variety, agricultural and artisanal practice or regionally typical expression.

As far as how and why go, all our wines are grown using organics, biodynamics or permaculture techniques, with no synthetic chemicals used in the vineyard. Grapes are handpicked and fermented using natural yeasts, pre-existing on the grapes as a result of no chemical sprays. Treated lightly without manipulation, yes including fining or filtering, in the cellar and void of any of the multitude of additives used in conventional wine-making. Some of our wines receive a very small (<30mg/L) of sulphur at the bottling stage (once the wine is finished, to stabilise during transport so it's as intended when it reaches you). And sometimes nothing added at all, pure, living wines.

We eat what we drink, organically grown and local where possible. Food made simply and honestly and that mesh and meld with what's in your glass, be it beer, cider, wine or spirit.

We aspire to be the harbingers of the new joie de vivre, the life well lived, the simple and complete enjoyment of simple and enjoyable things.

This is our cellar list, full of wines that were made thoughtfully and to our mind earn special consideration and acknowledgement, for the effort that went into making them is matched only by the immense pleasure they bring when drunk. Please read the list and ask us questions. We'll do our very best to point you in the direction of what will satisfy and delight for whatever frame of mind you find yourself in.
